Our Gold Star Men

Community of Oneonta, New York

Dedicated

To those silent men whose memory is enshrined in every heart;

To those men who chose to die resisting rather than to live submitting;

To those men who fled only from dishonor and who
met danger face to face;

To those men who by courage, sense of duty, and keen feeling of honor gave the most glorious contribution they could offer;

To those men who died as becomes Americans, whose love of country filled their hearts;

AND

To their survivors who must have an unfaltering resolution to build a good world for all, and to keep the peace for which they so nobly died.

Acknowledgments

*J*N the preparation of this book much assistance has been freely and generously given. I am particularly indebted to Mr. Edwin R. Moore, former city historian, who during his incumbency collected much of the material and has generously aided in many ways. I wish to express my gratitude to the following other persons also: Mrs. Benedict DeAngelo, Miss Rosana Bagg, Miss Irene Posthill, Robert Andree and Jess L. Leal. Finally, I wish to thank Dr. Alexander F. Carson, whose vision and encouragement have made this publication possible.

Foreword

SIXTY men—your friends and mine—have their war records set down in this memory book. More than 2,000 other men and women in this community answered the call of their country.

These citizens were schooled for peace, for joyful living, for neighborliness and good will. Instead, they found war and bloodshed, pillage and suffering. Out of this maelstrom of human suffering they received nothing. Instead, they gave — some gave their all — that each of us could enjoy the fruits of victory for which they fought.

It is fitting, therefore, that this memory book be dedicated to their great devotion and sacrifice.

Here are inscribed the service records of Oneonta's war dead, men who were but boys when they left to fight for their country's honor. They range in rank from the lowly to the high official, warriors of the land, sea, and air; winners of America's great citations for service well done.

I commend to you, therefore, the careful reading of the records of these men, that the youth of our city may emulate their love of country; that by the same token adults may ever be thankful for their saving our land through giving that "last full measure of devotion."

As Mayor it is my privilege to express for all our citizens our deep gratitude, and the resolve that these men shall not have died in vain.

Alexander H. Carson.

World War II

*C*ompany G was mustered into the Federal service on October 15, 1940, for a year of service. At the end of a year of service some of the men were released to inactive duty, but these were later recalled. While in training many of the men were transferred to other organizations. A number were sent back from Hawaii for officer training and did not rejoin the company. One man from Oneonta — August Gardella, was not federalized with the company but later joined it. The company served in combat in the Pacific area and will be especially noted for its participation in the battles of Saipan and Okinawa.
